The history of South Georgia State College begins over one hundred years ago, in 1906, with the founding by the state legislature as the Eleventh District Agricultural and Mechanical School in Douglas, Georgia. The A&M schools were residential secondary schools that gave rise to several of Georgia’s colleges and universities. In 1927, the Georgia Legislature passed a bill that made South Georgia College the first state supported two-year college. In 1932, the college joined 25 other institutions to become original members of the University System of Georgia. This placed these colleges under the governance of the Board of Regents. In 1936, the college received the name South Georgia College.

The University System established a new junior college in Waycross, Georgia, in December of 1970. Six years later, in September of 1976, Waycross Junior College welcomed its first students. In 1987, the institution became known as Waycross College. Throughout its history, the College added buildings as needed to better serve its students and the Waycross community.

In January 2011, University System Chancellor Hank Huckaby announced the consolidation of eight System institutions into four. South Georgia College and Waycross College were two of those institutions. As a result of the consolidation process, the two schools became known as South Georgia State College and received a new mascot (the Hawks) and colors (royal blue and gray).

The three original buildings on the semicircle of the Douglas campus were built in the few years following the founding of the school. The campus of today retains much of the character of this earlier time. These historic structures are now joined by other buildings that continue to maintain the notable nature of the campus while moving forward with modern design; its 190 acres provide a blend of well-maintained classroom and residential space with open green areas suitable for student gatherings. As the school grows in reputation and size, so does its facilities that serve the SGSC community.

In the recent past, such additions as the expanded wellness center with indoor pool, new athletic fields and the renovation of the Clover Student Life Center have given the students new places to spend their recreational time. The construction of Tiger Village I and II residence halls and the renovation of the dining hall create a student-centered environment within walking distance of one another. Plus, the Engram Hall Student Success Center places all the student services together in one area for ease in new student enrollment and current student financial services. The beauty of the campus has not diminished over the decades, and visitors to South Georgia State College today marvel at the historic feel of the campus intertwined with the modern touches of the new and renovated structures. As visitors walk around the campus today, it is easy for them to see the appeal of this hometown college with a progressive mindset.

The Waycross campus has its own array of academic and recreational venues, including two lakes, a parcours walking trail that meanders through the 150-acre campus, a gymnasium, and tennis and racquetball courts. The Waycross campus is also home to the South Georgia State College Hawks men’s basketball team.

Today, South Georgia State College is a multi-campus institution that serves over 2,600 students from 109 Georgia counties, 28 states, and 10 countries. The value and quality of its academics has been at the forefront of South Georgia State College. In 2011, the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia named South Georgia State College as a state college changing its mission and purpose to include limited baccalaureate offerings with the first being an RN to BSN completion degree.
South Georgia State College

South Georgia State College (SGSC) was created by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia on January 8, 2013, from the consolidation of Waycross College and South Georgia College in Douglas. The new, multi-campus institution serves over 2,600 students from 109 Georgia counties, 29 states, and 10 countries. SGSC’s main service area encompasses 15 counties in southern Georgia. It includes campuses in Douglas and Waycross, entry programs through Georgia Southwestern State University (Americus) and Valdosta State University, and Accel programs in partnership with two area high schools. As a result, SGSC now provides a wider selection of classes for its students.

SGSC currently offers a Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing along with associate degrees in over 20 programs of study. Now known as a state college within the University System of Georgia, the potential exists for SGSC to offer additional baccalaureate degrees in the future.

The College is committed to achievement and utilizes a number of strategies on each campus to guide students in their academic pursuits. Among these strategies are tutoring and individualized academic guidance from professionals in their field of study. Other services, such as those meeting counseling and disability needs, help to support overall student success.

Students have the flexibility to live on campus in Douglas or plan their schedules around family and work by utilizing any of SGSC’s convenient locations. The Douglas campus boasts two modern residence halls, which provide additional student life programming and all the amenities and comforts of home to enjoy college life. A revitalized dining hall and the Clower Student Life Center offer additional social activities. Likewise, a newly renovated Student Learning Center and the James M. Dye Student Services Building provide a sense of community and fun for students utilizing the Waycross campus. SGSC also offers over 20 clubs and organizations between both campuses to provide students with a well-rounded college experience.

Intercollegiate athletics has a rich heritage in both Douglas and Waycross, drawing athletes from throughout Georgia as well as other states and countries. The athletic program includes baseball, women’s softball, men’s and women’s soccer, men’s and women’s swimming, men’s and women’s cross country, and men’s basketball. Students may also enjoy intramural sports and individual play on numerous fields and courts on both campuses. The Douglas campus features a nine-hole golf course and an indoor junior Olympic-size pool in its Wellness Center complex. The Waycross campus has its own array of recreational venues, including two lakes, a paracourse walking trail that meanders through the 150-acre campus, a gymnasium, and tennis and racquetball courts.

SGSC currently contributes over $70 million annually to the region’s economy. The College partners with economic development officials to strengthen the quality of life in the communities it serves by hosting sports teams and hosting local events. The Douglas campus offers over 20 clubs and organizations between both campuses to provide students with a well-rounded college experience.
